REPORT ON THE 19TH GENERAL CONFERENCE AND 20TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL OF MUSEUMS BARCELONA, JULY 1-6, 2001

By the outgoing Chairman Reino Liefkes

Deputy Curator Glass & Ceramics Department
Victoria and Albert Museum

During the 2001 ICOM General Assembly in Barcelona, the ICOM GLASS Committee Meeting was organized by the Archaeological Museum of Catalunya. Participants came from the Czech Republic, Germany, Finland, Korea, Mexico, Spain, Sweden, and the United States.

Monday July 2, 2001.

The ICOM GLASS Committee held a joint paper session with ICDAD. The topic was Issues in the Decorative Arts Today. It was chaired by David McFadden (ICDAD) and Reino Liefkes (ICOM GLASS).

Although the topic for the session was kept rather general in order to encourage participation, most papers and discussions were centred around the importance of the decorative arts and design in society, and the role which museums play in defining and raising awareness of this. In total, there were twelve speakers.

Vidar Halen of The Oslo Museum of Applied Art argued that design critics and historians have all too willingly identified and inflated certain 'Nordic' characteristics in post-war Scandinavian design, partly to satisfy public demand for such clearly identifiable notions which helped to promote Scandinavian design on the international market. Museums have played their role in this, but now it is time to reassess the critical criteria by which we judge and describe designed objects.

Kaisa Koivisto from the Finnish Glass Museum in Riihimäki, explored the topic of "Finnish glass design from 1946 to 1957" from the points of view of designers, makers and consumers.

Milan Hlaves of the Decorative Arts Museum in Prague (UPM) explained how Czech Glass Sculpture was one of the very few branches of contemporary art to be sponsored by the Communist regime. Since then, it has continued to play an important role in defining Czech culture and national identity. Museums are striving with increasing success to reflect this in their collections and presentations.

In-Sook Lee from Seoul presented her plans for the first exhibition about European glass in Korea, to be held at the Kyonggi Provincial Museum. It is hoped that this will have a strong impact on the budding production of artistic glass in Korea.

Helena Horn from Venice presented an overview of contemporary glass in Venice. After a stale period, in which Venetian glassmakers seemed to have been trapped in their own past, there is now an increasing number of new promising artists, who are more open to outside influences.

We concluded with a visit to the Archaeological Museum of Catalonia. Our host, curator Teresa Carreras, guided us through her exhibition Glass Dialogues which was specially organised for ICOM 2001. It was a refreshing and informative view on how ancient glass has inspired contemporary artists, but also how their work can influence the way in which we perceive historic museum objects.

Tuesday, July 3 – Wednesday, July 4.

Over the following two days there were guided tours to a number of glass collections and Institutions. We were introduced to the Glass Foundation & Centre by Ignasi Domènech, its energetic Director. Philippa Beveridge, a glass artist in residence, provided a guided tour through the school's workshops, which included stained glass restoration, design, and sculpture. It was followed by a visit to Espace Vidre, a gallery dedicated to see contemporary artists' work.

We also visited the Archaeological Museum of Catalonia, the Glass Foundation & Centre), the Amatller Foundation with glass from the Roman to modern periods; the Perfume Museum (glass perfume bottles from the Roman, medieval, and modern periods); and the Decorative Arts Museum with its permanent collection of glass objects from 1500 to the modern period. It has a superb collection of Catalan and other regional Spanish glass, mostly in storage, which we were fortunate to study at length.

MINUTES OF THE BUSINESS MEETING
Barcelona, Spain
July 4, 2001

1/ The Board

Board Member	Elected	Due to retire
Chairman: Jutta-Annette Page	2001	2007
Secretary: Gunnel Holmér	2001	2007
Jan Mergl	2001	2007
Geoffrey Edwards	1999	2005
Kaisa Koivisto	2000	2006
Helena Horn	2000	2006

2/ Elections

Reino Liefkes retired as chairman, Jutta-Annette Page as Secretary, and Gunnel Holmer as ordinary Board Member. Subsequently, Jutta-Annette Page was elected new Chairman and Gunnel Holmér new Secretary. According to the statutes, the Committee needs a minimum of five Board members and a Chairman. To avoid having several changes in the Board's composition occur in one year, it was decided that at least two or three new Board members would need to be elected in the coming years. At the present meeting, Jan Mergl (of Passau and Karlsbad) was elected as new Board member. It was decided that the election of the two other members would be postponed until 2002.

3/ Call for nominations of Board Members for 2002

In 2001 the Chairman, the Secretary and three Board Members were required to retire, all of them having served the permitted maximum of six years in their posts. A new Chairman, a new Secretary and one new Board member were elected in Barcelona in 2001. Election of two more Board members was postponed until 2002.

Urgent: Please submit all nominations for the 2002 election of two more Board members to the current Chairman Jutta-Annette Page.

4/ Future venues for annual meetings

2002 Annual Meeting

Emilio Flores Siller of the Museo del Vidrio in Zaragoza y Magallanes, Mexico, announced that he would investigate the possibility for a conference in Monterrey and Mexico City. However, the events of September 11, 2001 made a European venue for the next conference more feasible. Therefore, the 2002 ICOM GLASS meeting will be held in Prague. The confirmed dates for this meeting are September 8-14, 2002 (see below). The theme of the meeting will be A Discourse in Bohemian Glass. For a preliminary program of the conference, see below. Milan Hlaves, Curator at the Museum of Decorative Arts in Prague (UPM) has been appointed as our official contact person.

2003 meeting

An official invitation has not yet been received. The chairman is currently investigating with ICOM officials in Turkey about a possible meeting in that country. Other previously proposed venues, aside from Mexico, are the Musées Royaux d'Art et d'Histoire in Brussels, the Musée d'Art Décoratifs in Paris, the State Historical Museum in Moscow, and Slovenia.

5/ Membership

The number of members increased from 186 in March 2000 to 205 in September 2001, and 92 of our members are voting members. Our membership represents 30 countries.

The membership list we receive from ICOM is often inaccurate, as members are only removed from the mailing list if they (or their institutions) either do not pay the fees or they resign from the committee. It was therefore decided that addresses, email-addresses, telephone numbers etc. of the members should be updated by asking them to fill in a form attached to this Newsletter. Recruiting of new members was also discussed and it was decided that Emilio Flores Siller should contact important glass museums and ask for new members.

6/ Financial Report 2001

Assets	£ 1,879.60
Income (ICOM Paris)	£ 352.28
	-----
Total	£ 2,232.88
Expenses (Barcelona Meeting)		£ 42.35
Hardware for our website		£ 617.21
		-----
Total		£ 659.56
Final assets	£ 1,573.32

Other subventions:

The Corning Museum of Glass donates the costs for production and mailing of the Newsletter.

The bank account has been transferred in the fall of 2001 to Sweden, and is now administered by the current Secretary Gunnel Holmer.

7/ Web site (Report by the current chair, Jutta-Annette Page)

The official ICOM Glass committee website is made accessible through the information technology services provided by The Corning Museum of Glass. As agreed in the 2000 ICOM business meeting, we purchased in 2001 the software Microsoft NTServer OS to facilitate the website. The site is designed by the chairman. Corning IT staff is providing technical support with the hosting of the website. The domain registration is handled by ICOM Paris and the proposed web address is icomglass@icom.org. We hope to be LIVE by the end of April, 2002.

The planned website will start out with a basic homepage, including information about the Mission Statement, Membership, the Newsletter 2002, the Meeting in 2002, and contact addresses for member institutions.

Please note on the attached query sheet if you prefer to receive the Newsletter in the future electronically or by post.
